Ground broken for Mt. Kisco library

Village officials expect $8M building to be ready in spring 2009

MOUNT KISCO — Village officials and other dignitaries broke ground for the village's new public library last week.

Mount Kisco village trustees, library officials and state and county lawmakers attended the ceremony at Village Hall, 104 Main St.

The $8 million project will put a new, two-story library at 100 Main St., where the old facility used to rest before its demolition in July. For now, the library is housed at a former community center at 55 Maple Ave.

The plan is to build an 18,000-square-foot building, nearly twice the size of the former one.

The village Board of Trustees last month awarded contracts for the new library.

Construction is to be finished by early spring 2009.

The new library will have 30 geothermal wells to help heat and cool the building.

The Mount Kisco library foundation is raising money to help furnish the new library. For information, go to www.mtklibraryfoundation.org.
